

interlude before omw

nervous energy
as i tap my foot
the cactus on my desk
trembles to the rhythm
i dim the lights
so the sensation
can puncture the water
of my left eye
jolt through my heart
and out my fingers
the letters smashed
together seemingly
at random
my nerves palpitate
until my spine twitches
like an addict
i fiend
for a time not here
and maybe for a soul
to fall softly
into my lap
like a feather
from the heavens
lighting flows
into my heart to induce its
quiver
empty
because the arrow
is jammed in my bow