

meditations of the night

as the moon chases, full with the light of a source
 unseen,
 i feel
 the presence of a familiar
 originlessness,
my body a
 puppet
with its
 strings
 sliced,
 severed,
floating in a
 chasm
 of direction,
tonight, the moon
 tells my sensitivity
to speak,
 in a language
 where the words
come as
 songs
 without words,
and the world
 slips,
 knotted
back
 into a rythm
