

my ears hear ear

the sound is a poem.

the feeling
melding ...

the spirit
thrashing,
squirming,
but in a fucked up way,
dancing.

dot dot dot
says the sky
beige black
in its complacency,
its pulsing
resonant with my own.

do you feel her ?
presence softer
than audible.

lacunae
wedged within
the gaps of my teeth,
persistently.

the eerie cries
of two
blind bluebirds bend between each pair of eyes
in tandem.

you only learn about
the click
of the world
when you've listened
long enough
involuntarily.
